

Funny Journal (1)

Our kindergarten has been committed to designing a variety of diversified activities according to children's development needs and personal characteristics, thereby consolidating existing knowledge, broadening personal life experience, establishing a spirit of exploration, and cultivating an active learning attitude. So, these promote children's physical and mental well-being development and lay a good foundation for their future learning!

Let's review parts the things children have learned at various levels in the first semester through "Funny Journal" .

K1 Funny Journey

Theme A: New Beginning

The early days at school are the important transition period for new students. Children move from simple family life to campus life. While being exposed to the wider world, they must also adapt to a more complex life. Therefore, it is important for young children to establish a sense of security and belonging to the school through familiar routines, which help them engage in the group life at school. At the same time, children also interact with the environment through interaction with the environment to build a positive sense of competence, self-confidence and good living habits.

Theme B: Heavenly Father created me

After a month, the children gradually adapted to campus life. In this theme, children will learn that they are God's unique creation through telling the story of creation and learn that they are precious by exploring their own bodies. Afterwards, young children will learn to express their needs and ideas, learn to take care of themselves, and build self-care abilities. At the end of the theme, they will discuss their own growth process and understand that birthdays are a way of celebrating growth.

Theme C: Heavenly Father gives me a happy home

In the previous theme, children learned about their own uniqueness, explored their own bodies and learned to express their needs and take care of themselves. This theme will extend to discuss the families of young children. By starting with a family obeying God in the Bible, children learn to introduce their family members, explore their home environment, the animals and plants at home, and get to know the activities at home. Finally, this part concludes with children learning to obey the words of the Heavenly Father.

Theme A: I have promoted

Children have already established a certain sense of security and belonging to the school when they were in K1 class. K2 class is a new change with adaptation to change of teachers, classrooms and new students joined or transferred from other places. Therefore, in the first month of class, we let children transition from old and familiar people and things to new learning which is very important. Furthermore, young children have more social needs than before, so they need more strengthening of the practice of social skills helping them participate in group life.

Theme B: I am Precious

Children, in this theme, start by understanding that they are God's unique creation. Then through body exploration, they learn to take care of themselves and protect their own body. Afterwards, knowing to have unique facial features and expressions, they explore different emotions in depth, and learn to accept that they have different emotions and appropriate ways to express them.

Finally, children will know their growth timeline, thereby constructing a preliminary concept of time and understanding the meaning of birthday celebrations.

Theme C: Blessed home

Children, in this theme starting with the story of Noah obeying God and building an ark, they explore their family members and relationships, and each person's role at home. Then starting with the environment and activities at home they explore the concepts of geographical location and time, and then discuss the pets and plants at their home. So children learn about their home from different perspectives: geography, history, animals, plants, and learn from the words of the Bible that the key to a blessed family is to obey and follow God's words.

Theme A: I am special

When children promoted to senior classes, it means they are about to enter another stage (primary school). Children during this period have established a certain degree of independence. They are familiar with the campus environment and rules and have certain social skills. Therefore, they have a certain foundation to explore their own uniqueness (personality, preferences, abilities, gifts, etc.). They can establish their sense of responsibility to serve others and be responsible for the environment.

Theme B: Hong Kong is my home

The previous theme of children understanding the uniqueness of their own bodies and abilities has been extended to discuss the families of young children. From family members, family titles to family trees, children have a deeper understanding of their own families. After that, we will slowly expand to discussing where we live, and then explore Hong Kong's geographical environment and Hong Kong as part of China.

Theme C: Public transport In Hong Kong

In the previous theme, children discussed their own families and understood Hong Kong where their homes are located. This theme continues the exploration at the end of the previous theme and then goes into the special study of Hong Kong's transportation. In this theme, they will associate and explore the relationship of transportation between animals, plants, geography and historical times in Hong Kong, so that they can have a deeper understanding of modes of transportation changes.
